Reflections OF
THE SCHOOL YEAR

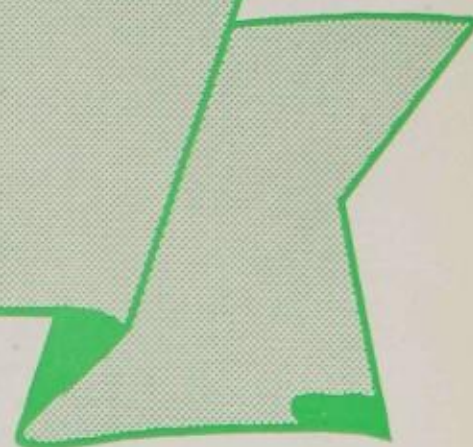

The 1946

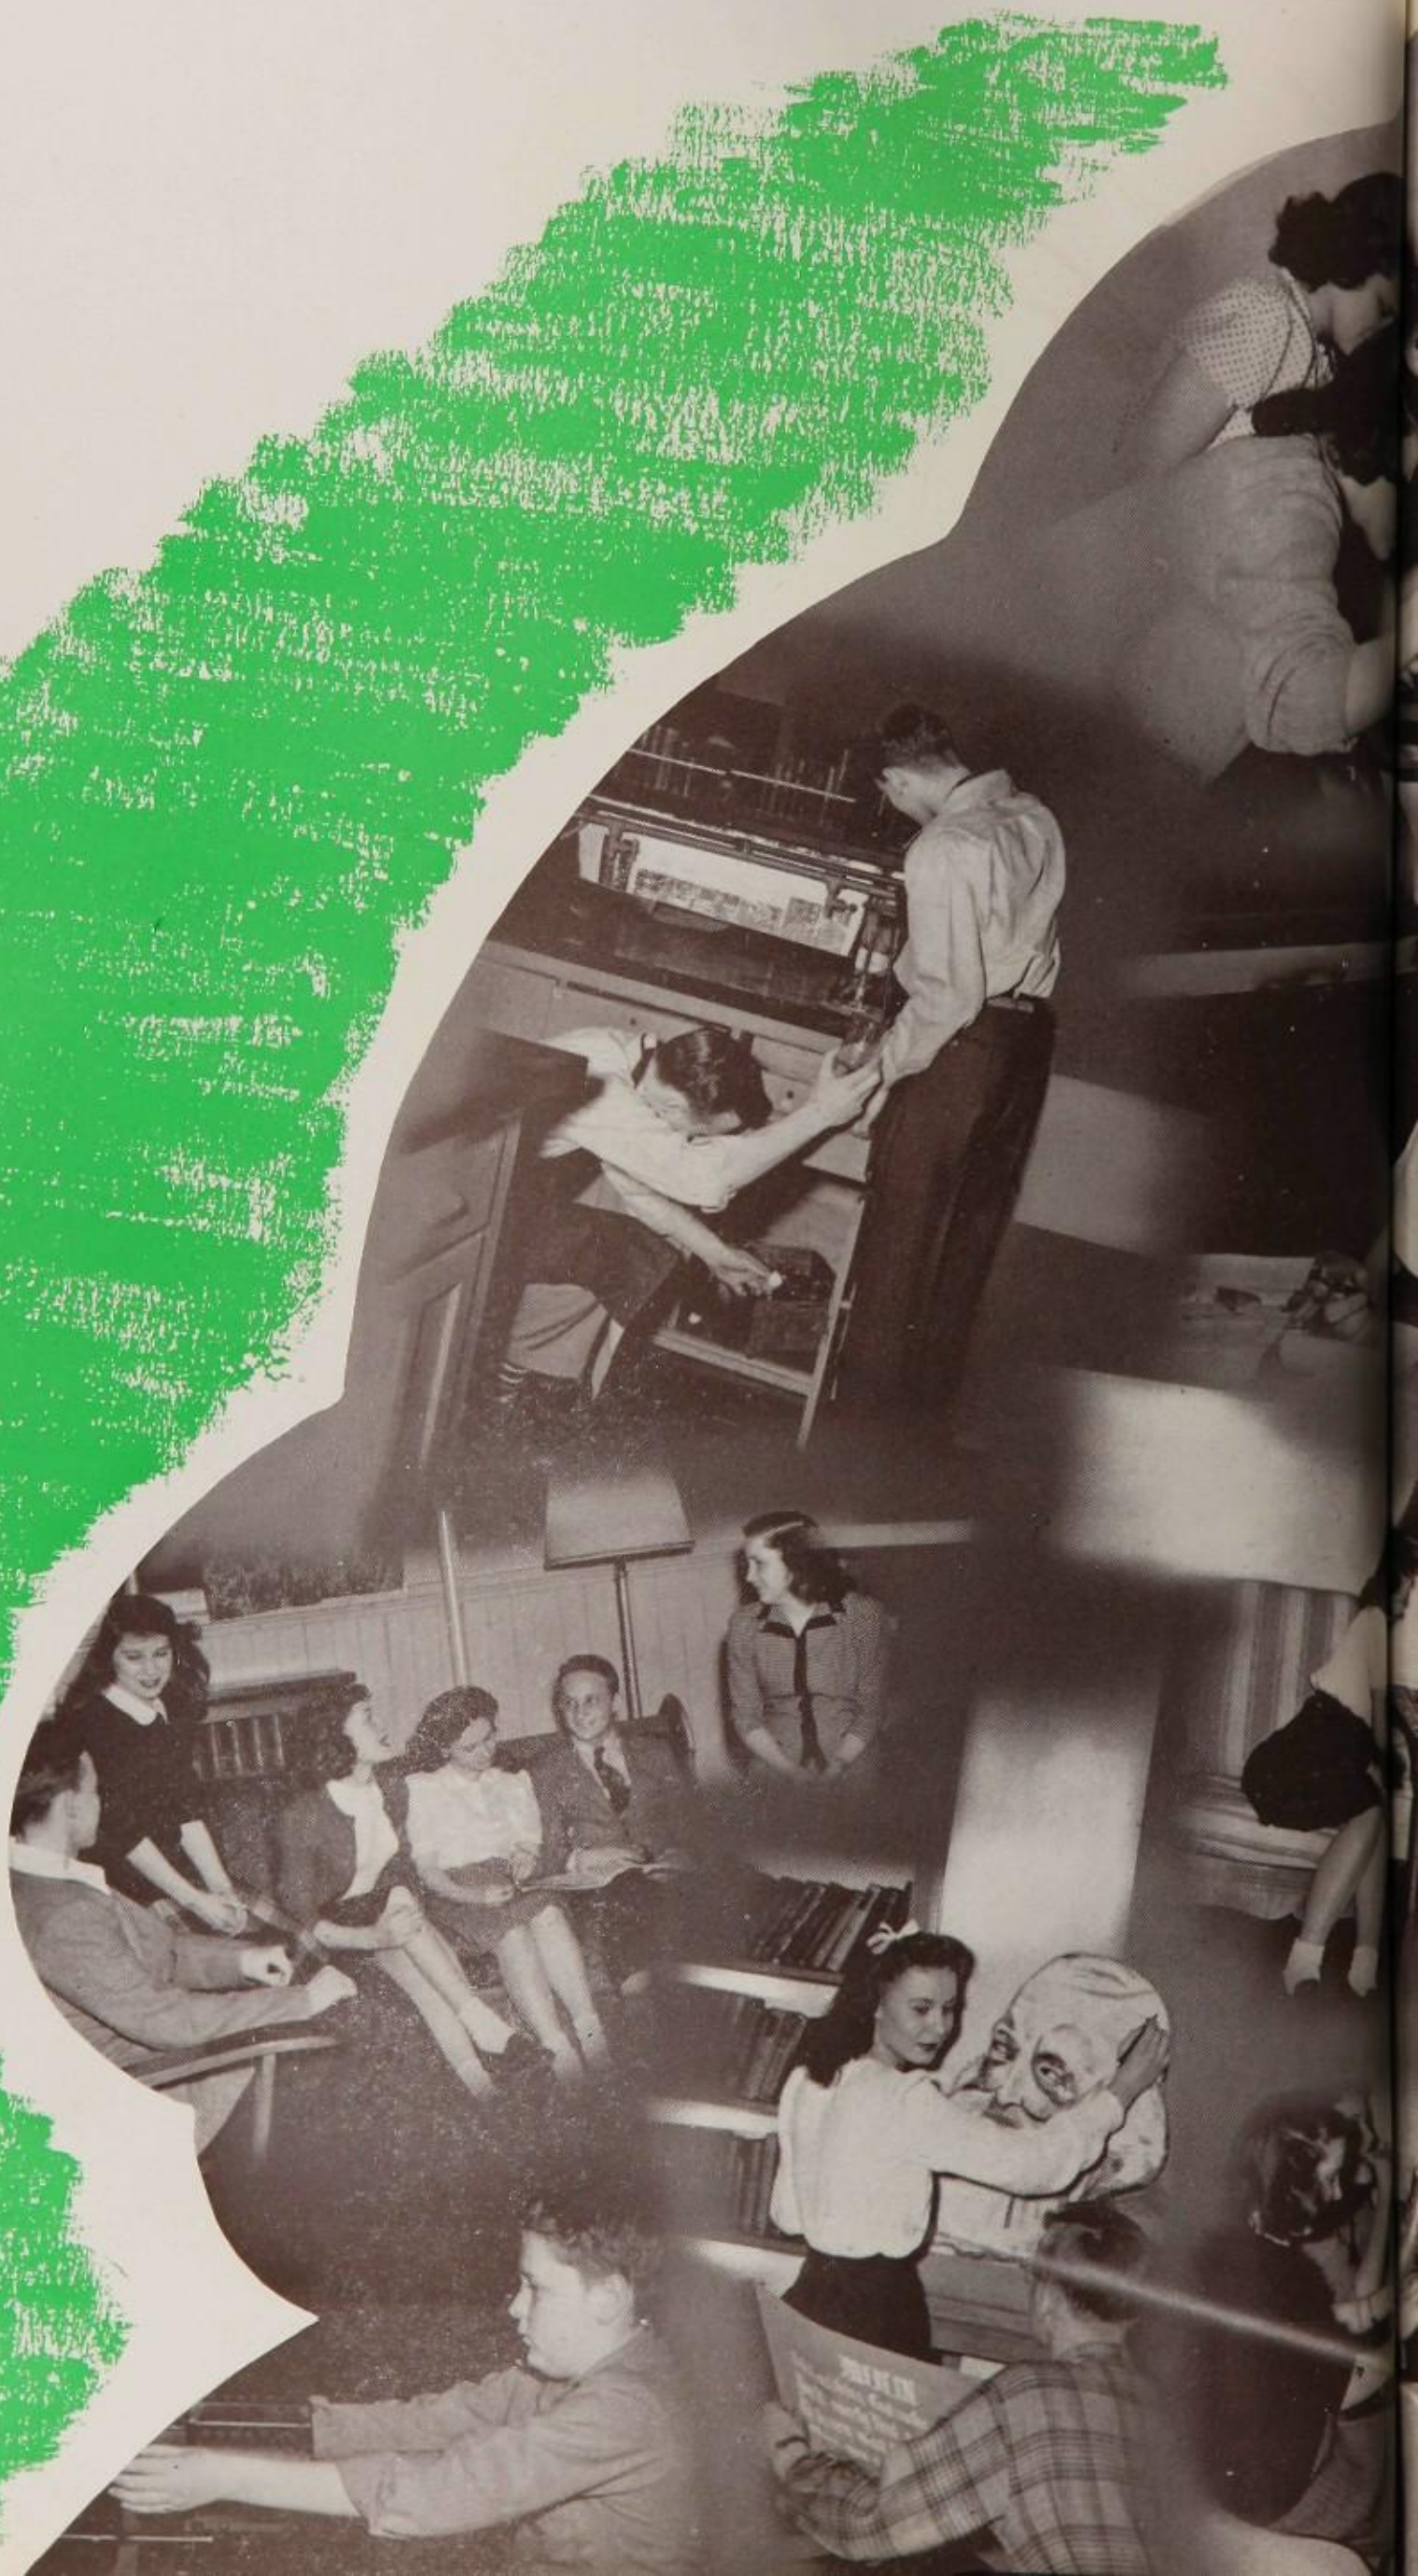

LATROBE

LATROBEAN

HIGH SCHOOL . . . LATROBE, PENNSYLVANIA

The Year in RETROSPECT

It's been a busy year . . . football games plus all the trimmings . . . home rooms decked out in Christmas costumes . . . hardwood thrills with cheers . . . spotlight lovers exercising their gift of gab . . . Patrick Henry's stepping forth during March . . . 11:23 bell on Wednesday and Friday . . . serious cases of excitement at prom time . . . Monday club time chatter . . . committee fiends rigging up odds and ends for plays . . . musicians serving community and school!

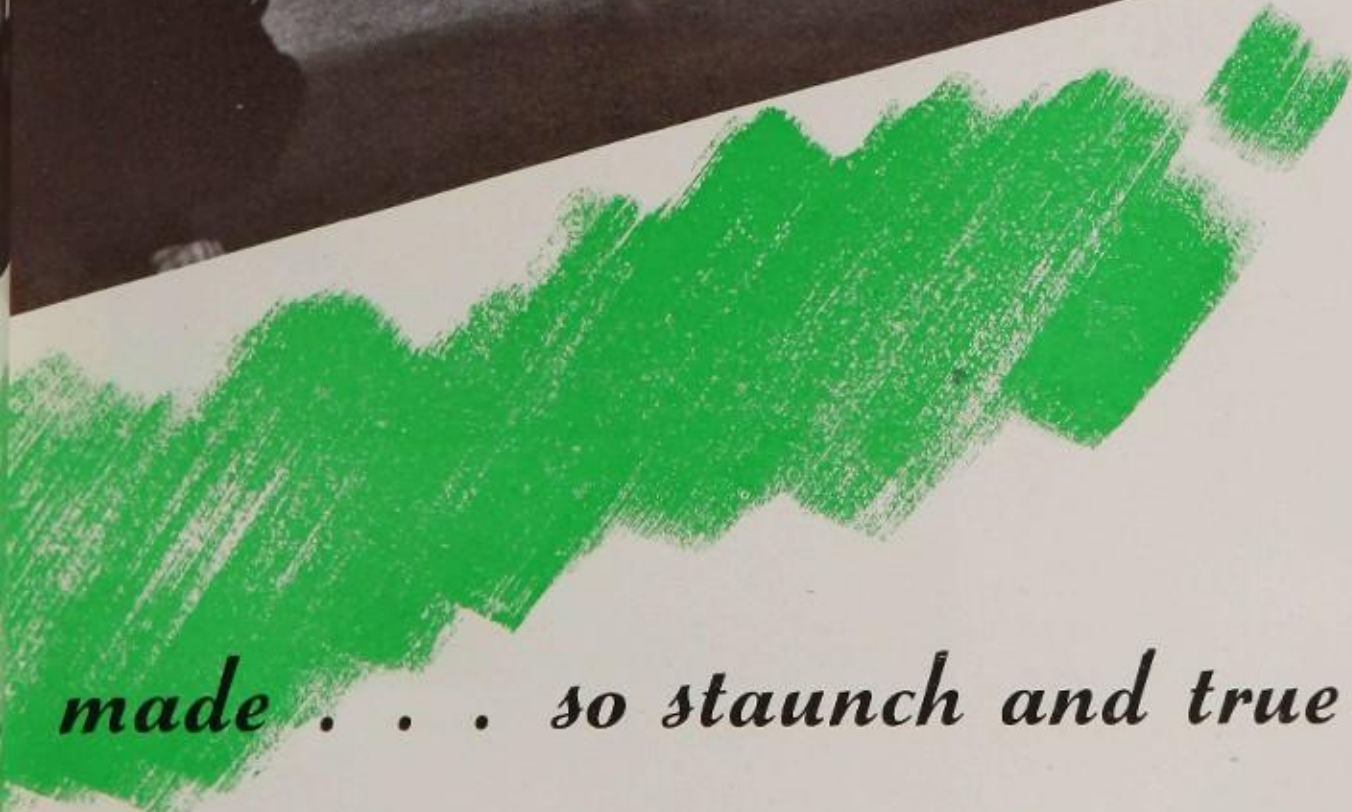

Maybe we haven't caught all the important features in this the twenty-third volume of the Latrobean, but a glance through the pages will suggest that we at least tried.

Here again may you see the 1946 highlights of . . .

The FRIENDS that we made . . . so staunch and true to us.

Mr. John G. Hulton, superintendent, examines new textbooks.

That which makes a school paramount in all respects may often be summed up in the word administration, for it is here that the development, the operation, and the efficient running of the school has its inception.

The administration may be divided into three parts, the Latrobe Board of Education and the offices of superintendent and principal. The Board of Education determines the policies which govern the school's activities and solves the problems which may arise, such as carrying out plans for improving the grounds and buildings. Included in their program this year was the construction of two modern rest rooms on the first floor for the convenience and comfort of the faculty. Repainting the Miss Ruth Himler, secretary to the Board of Education, finishes up some secretarial duties in Mr. Hulton's office.

ADMINISTRATION

Builds Ideal Student Body
For Coming Millenium

Mr. M. N. Funk, principal, reviews senior records before making recommendations.

Members of the Latrobe Board of Education transact school business at their regular meeting each month: Mr. H. A. Stewart, Mrs. Ruth B. Robb, Dr. S. W. Nealon, Mr. W. H. Flickinger, Mr. George Brown, Mr. William McCullough, and Dr. Thomas St. Clair.

auditorium posed a problem that was successfully solved despite the difficulties in securing materials and workmen because of conditions relating to the war.

The Board also helped in the installing of the Student Council room, the first of its kind in this part of the state. Here the holding of informal meetings and entertainment of outside guests takes place. The Board ordered new bleachers for the Athletic Field, purchased additional machinery for the shops, and cooperated with the state in conducting the new health program which consisted of a thorough examination of freshmen and junior boys and girls with the aid of four doctors and 11 dentists.

In order to aid the returning veteran continue his education, special courses were approved for G.I.'s who needed more credits to gain admission to college. Classes were also made available for adults who wished to take such subjects as typing, shorthand, or wood shop. This year, for the first time, high school students were permitted to enroll in mechanical drawing and machine shop evening classes. Another phase of the Board's work dealt with the recreation program. The community club, with facilities for teen-age recreation, was actively supported by the board and is under the supervision of hostesses from Latrobe.

The second division, the office of Mr. John G. Hulton, superintendent of the Latrobe Public Schools, works in coordination with the school board in directing the educational activities of the six public schools in Latrobe. Among his many duties, Mr. Hulton sees that high standards of teaching are maintained throughout the system and oversees the installing of equipment to promote extra curricular activities.

Most students are familiar with the routine in the office of Mr. M. N. Funk, principal, for it is here that everyone receives advice and guidance on the school problems that are bound to arise every day. Mr. Funk offers suggestions to newcomers in choosing courses, to graduates going on to college, to those seeking employment, or to the student with his individual problems.

The manifold secretarial duties connected with the operation of the school are taken care of by the Misses Ruth Himler, Ida Wigfield and Dorothy Greubel. Miss Himler acts as secretary to Mr. Hulton and the Board of Education, with Miss Wigfield as her clerical assistant. Miss Greubel takes care of the stenographic work in Mr. Funk's office. As assistant principal, Miss Florence Breeton deals directly with student attendance, permits, and excuses.

Through these three branches of the administration working in conjunction, students experience an efficient, well-run organization without realizing the problems with which these administrators deal.

As part of their duties as office secretaries, Miss Ida Wigfield and Miss Dorothy Greubel check the street-car tickets each Monday.

Mr. H. W. Bitner explains atomic structure by use of new molecular models, to Miss Catherine Netzlof, Mr. Harry Graham, Miss Virginia Daniels, and Mrs. Josephine Stahl, science faculty members.

SCIENCE

Develops New Aristotles
To Reveal Mysteries

Chemistry students examine weekly displays of current studies.

Whether the individual ultimately gains fame for himself by inventing a machine to add, subtract, multiply, divide and find square root, or discovers a new cure for disease depends on his ability to absorb scientific information during his four years in high school.

Although freshmen are required to study general science, soon genuine interest develops in the atoms and levers. In this class pupils begin to understand the workings of the human body as well as an introduction to the stars and planets. Recently curious students formed a club to probe further questions along this line.

The student then progresses to the biology room. Here an appreciation of the course introduces a study of bacteria, birds, and flowers. Microscopic work also occupies part of these periods. To climax the year, the sophomores take part in a nature contest at Pittsburgh, James Fenton, first winner from Latrobe, took third prize.

During the last years at school, members of chemistry classes often find themselves overcome by the fumes of H_2S . The study of physics completes the course by developing interest in light, sound, and electricity.

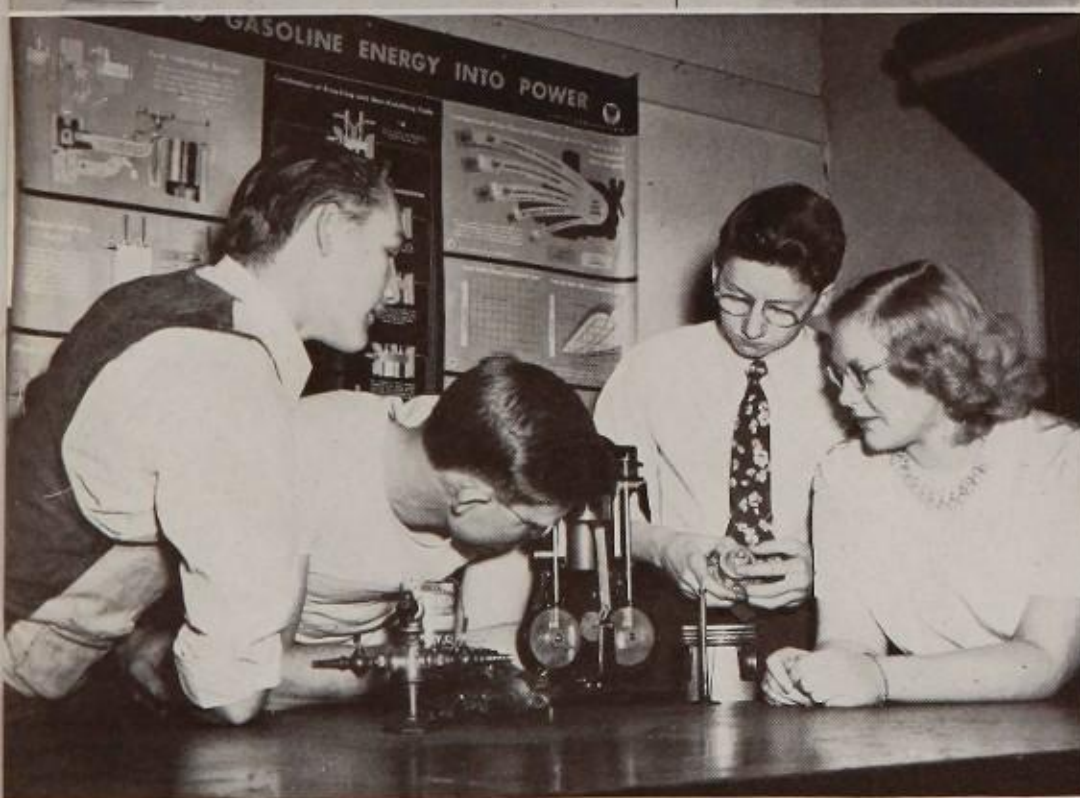

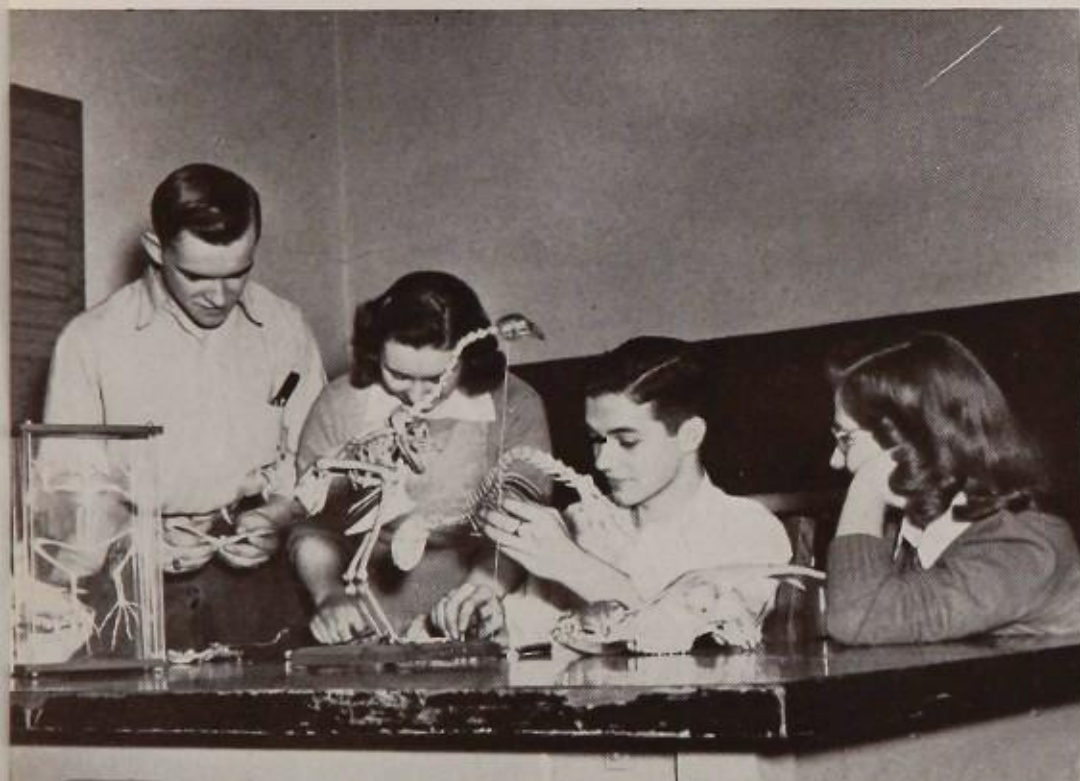

The courses given during the four years provide the means to fit the student to live in a new scientific world.

● "And if they go together right, it comes out a cat," biology students, interested in assembling skeletons, will assure you.

● A model gasoline engine illustrates the principal of an automobile cylinder to seniors in physics class.

● Proper apparatus is an important step in any experiment, Juniors in chemistry class discover.

● "And if you lift it up on the pulley, it decreases the weight," explains Mr. Graham to freshmen science students.

HOME ECONOMICS

Homemakers Soon Master
Stitches And Souffles

● "The proof of the pudding is in the eating"
—and the eating is really 'super' when homemaking girls prepare the food.

To girls enrolled in the homemaking course, cooking, sewing, and related arts classes provided the highlights of their daily program.

The Homemaking Cottage, where they were able to study and practice the rudiments of making a home, provided the setting for their activities. Here they were able to bake a cake, make a dress, or plan a center piece.

Of course, when they were freshmen, it seemed they would never be able to get a cake to rise or put a straight hem in a dress. But they listened to lectures, they read textbooks, they looked at pictures, they watched their instructors, and soon they too became adept and skillful.

They learned to plan and prepare a balanced meal, the correct diet for convalescents, and which vitamin will guarantee curly hair and "personality plus." They learned to make a suit or a housecoat, an evening gown, or a bathing suit. They made metal bracelets and salt and pepper shakers. They learned how to make a center piece and the correct courtesy for a hostess. They learned the fundamentals of good grooming and how to wear their clothes. Why? Because they are the homemakers of tomorrow.

Mrs. Marjorie Arch, Miss Emily Vosburgh, and Mrs. Katharine Stumbaugh, homemaking faculty, admire the new drapery material for the cottage displayed by student teachers, Miss Alice Cassidy and Miss Esther Stockton.

Part of the fun in homemaking class is a lunch now and then when the cooking goes well.

Seniors in related arts class examine samples of work done during the semester.

Proper cutting and fitting is an important element in dressmaking.

Preparations for the Senior Tea get underway in the Homemaking Department.

Mr. John Titus, Mr. Otto Martens, Mr. Herbert Hoerr, Mr. Herbert Thompson, and Mr. Fred Halsall, industrial teachers, look on as Mr. Phillip Schwartz points out the details of glass brick construction in the new faculty rooms.

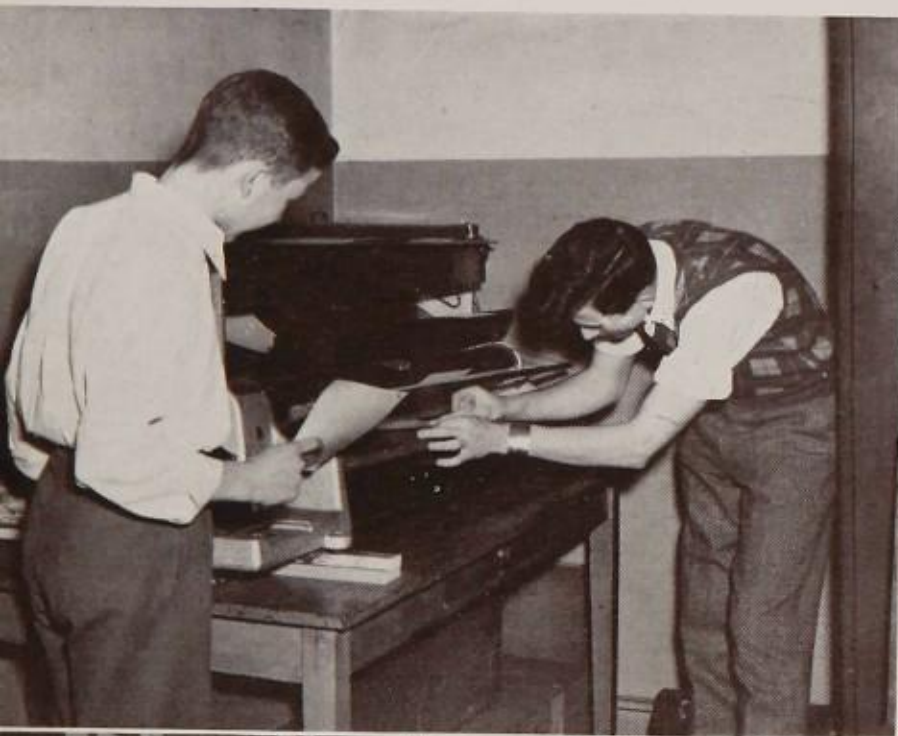

INDUSTRY

From Mine To Machines
And Trees To Tables

Future craftsmen, George Greubel and Wilbur Ray, reduce ideas to technical terms by using the blueprint machine. . . . Senior electricians, Frank Resnic, Lawrence Andros, and Ed Knouse, examine apparatus for faulty wiring.

Machinists, George Wigfield and George Kovalick, make good use of the collet lathe. . . . Freshmen and sophomore trade students learn fundamentals of shop work at Fourth Ward School before they select the shop in which they will work.

● "Red" Richwine, assisted by Albert Barnett and Charles Dollar, pours metal for special molds as part of their work in the wood shop.

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to speak of many things, of armatures and turret lathes and broken sanding machines." And so might the Walrus have raved in his conversation with the Carpenter had they been discussing the intricacies and problems that confront the "shop boy" as he learns the fundamentals of industry.

The useful arts of the electrician, carpenter, and machine operator are taught to students taking the industrial course. In electric shop the boys discover the difference between a short and a ground, while the mechanical drawing classes explain three dimensional blue printing and scale drawings. Trying their hands at the cabinet maker's trade, the boys of the wood shop make many useful and attractive pieces of furniture. Machine shop teaches the boys to operate drill presses and lathes, also it shows them the rudiments of welding and foundry work. So the artisans of tomorrow are created in the school rooms of today.

Sophomores study the "world we live in" through the medium of the weekly news map. . . . Senior problems of democracy students trace the development of future "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Freshmen civics students learn the functions of the branches of government from a study of the Constitution. . . . History students also discuss world affairs by means of formal talks.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Civics, History And P.O.D.
Broaden Personal Ideals

Social science instructors examine supplementary history texts in the library: Seated, Miss Jean Dibb, Mrs. Gladys Gilbert, Mr. William Yates; Standing, Mr. G. E. Lee, Mr. George Rise and Mr. J. R. Beatty.

Striving to cultivate active citizens in a democratic world, social science classrooms provided for the study of civics, world history, American history, and problems of democracy.

In civics class, freshmen became acquainted with local, federal, and national governments. They learned essentials and qualifications of good citizens and procedures by which a democratic government operates. Tracing the history of mankind from the beginning of time, sophomores delved into the study of the stone age and prehistoric man.

As juniors, American history students learned about the development of our country through extensive map study and current events.

Completing their social study curriculum, seniors in problems of democracy classes studied present world organization for peace. Forums were conducted in assembly on local and national problems.

• V-J Day closes another historical era.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Give Sportsters Chance for Regular Exercise

Mrs. Mary Alice Graham and Mr. Creed Westfall, physical education instructors, examine the permanent health records of the students during a free period.

School physicians, Dr. Joseph Doherty, Dr. Wiley Hartman, Dr. G. F. Nealon, and Dr. William Schimpf, discuss health examinations with Mrs. Florence Young, school nurse.

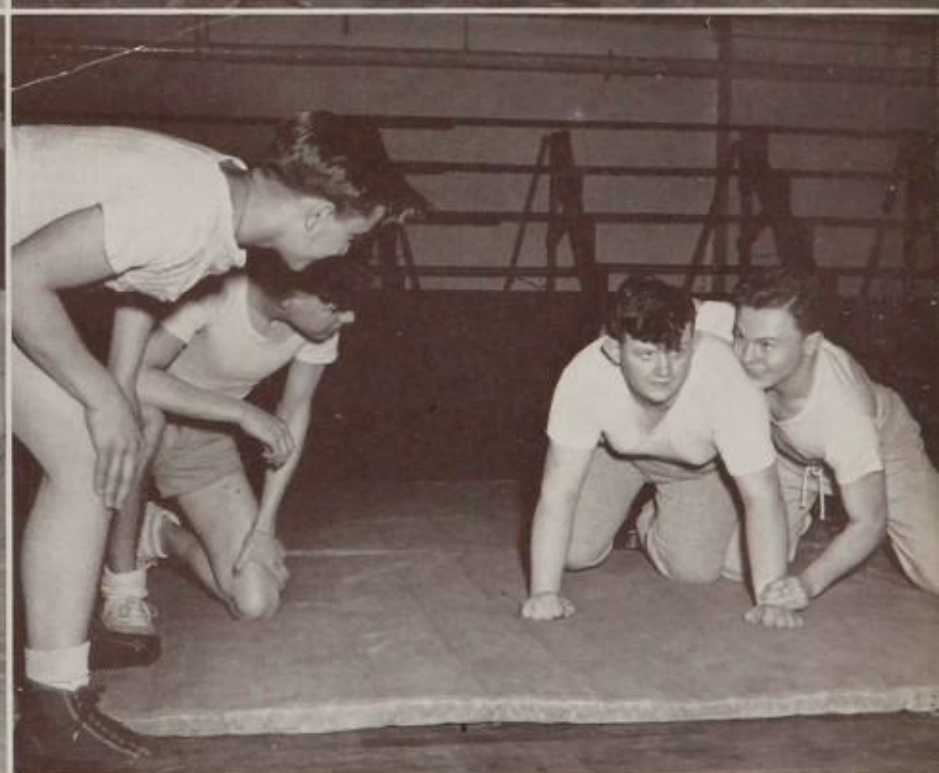

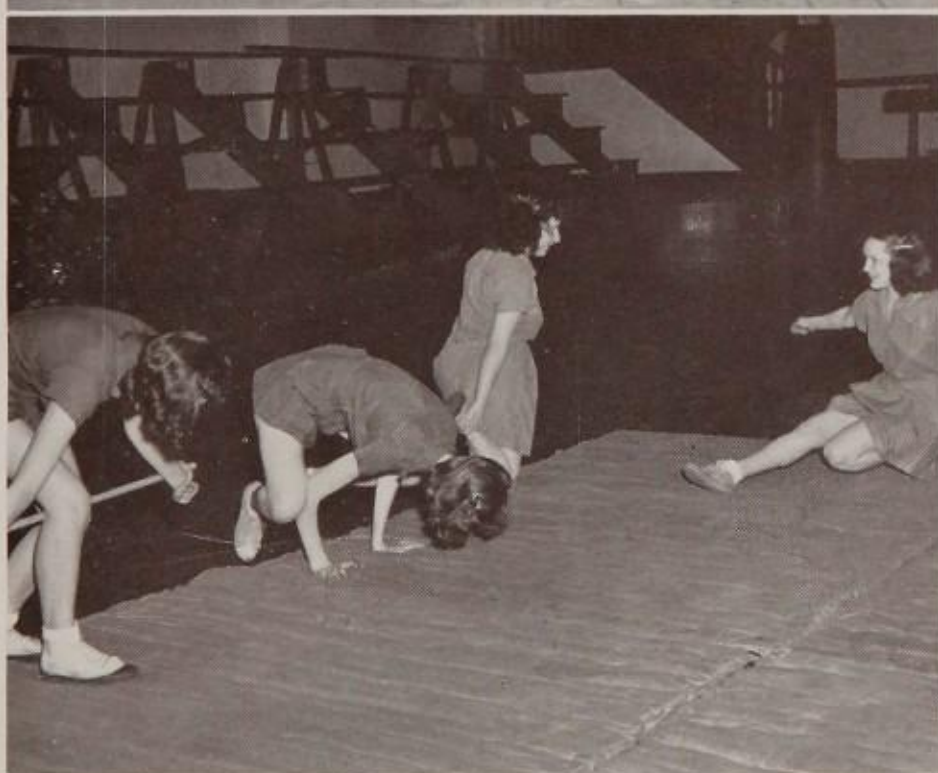

Students taking physical education this year, recall the days last fall when they had gym class at the Showalter Flats, and such games as softball, field hockey, and soccer provided excitement for all.

Mrs. Mary Alice Graham, girls' health and gym supervisor, conducted a hockey tournament for girls from all classes. She also led her girls in calisthenics which caused moaning for weeks. They still remember the days they tap danced in tennis shoes.

In the meantime, the boys under Mr. Creed Westfall played some rousing games of indoor football which they will never forget. They had weekly boxing and wrestling bouts and practiced in gym class for the intra-mural basketball tournament.

During the winter months loud cheering came from the gym in support of the fight between class and home room basketball teams. Girls and boys alike were confronted with the problem of getting "those eligibility slips" signed.

Mrs. Florence Young, school nurse, and four Latrobe physicians made thorough physical examinations of all freshmen and juniors. This was to inform parents of the physical needs of the students. A detailed health report for each student went out to parents, indicating individual results of the different examinations.

Ping pong winners, Nancy Lynch and James Fenton, congratulate each other as runners-up, Harry Murray and Edith Matko look on. . . . "Reach for the ceiling!" is applied in physical education classes. . . . The study of graceful motion is part of the girls' physical education program.

Mr. Charles Lynch, custodian, checks supplies in the stock room as one of his daily jobs. . . . The "walking beams" assure girls in gym classes poise and balance. . . . Readin', 'ritin', and 'rasslin' are the three "r's" for Paul Bell and Brian Page in the gym.

A quiet library, good reference material, and what happens? Spring Fever!

ENGLISH

Grammar And Literature Sharpen Young Wits

Mrs. Elizabeth Witherspoon, Miss Mabel Lindner, Miss Irene Mertz, and Miss Phyllis Jones, examine extemp material as Miss Eleanor Edwards, Mr. H. D. Benford, Mr. Mars Dovey, Miss Martha Osborne, and Mr. Michael Rizzo, additional members of the English faculty, look on.

Serving as the backbone for all school subjects, English helps to develop individual characteristics through book reports, the study of grammar, oral reports, and the reading of classics.

Freshmen learned not to "shake in their shoes" while giving weekly talks on Friday. They will probably always remember how long it took them to memorize "All the world's a stage—" from Shakespeare's "As You Like It." "Silas Marner" and the "Odyssey" also remained among their favorite classics.

Writing autobiographies climaxed the sophomore English students career. They spent many an hour selecting pictures from the family album and trying to find a suitable title for their "brainchild." They also made an extensive study of essays and poems as a supplement to their classics, "Contemporary Verse" and "Essays Of Our Day."

Juniors tried their hand at writing original short stories after having studied the characteristics of the short story. In assembly they produced scenes from "The Merchant Of Venice." Their study of Shakespeare's works was made more interesting by using records where different scenes from the play were enacted. The juniors "revealed all" in the diaries they kept throughout the year.

Seniors brushed up on public speaking and grammar. Senior English was characterized by the ever increasing board vocabulary. Not all their classroom work fell into the traditional routine. As part of their study, they brought to assembly an interesting presentation of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," briefed and condensed to adapt it to the time available.

● Autobiographies loom large in the lives of sophomores and provide amusing reading after they are finished. . . . Junior extemporaneous speakers give the UNO a real verbal workout.

● Ye Thanksgiving assembly was ye big success and the freshmen breathed easier. . . . Friday English talks help fill the library tables as the end of the week approaches.

Fine arts teachers, Miss Adeline Reeping, Miss Evelyn Baxter, Mr. Samuel Green, and Miss Mary Martha Himler, study student projects.

FINE ARTS

Linguists Speak New Tongues To Artists And Maestros

Declensions, conjugations, verbs, and grammar remind language students of the past year's activities. Latin classes enacted a Roman Wedding and enjoyed a Roman Banquet during National Latin Week. They also presented a Latin play as an assembly program. French and Spanish students studied native newspapers and magazines and corresponded with pen pals from France, Spain, and South America.

Student musicians recalled how feverishly they worked to prepare for the instrumental and choral concerts they presented on March 22 and April 5. This department filled the corridors with music throughout the year. Besides supplying the background for assemblies, they added color to the football games.

Recollections of dabbling in water colors, portraits, designs and lettering filled the artists with memories of the artistic year. Some art students entered work in the Scholastic exhibit at Kaufman's in Pittsburgh, while others made posters to advertise school events.

FINE WORK FROM THE FINE ARTS

Maps are only a few of the projects Spanish students developed as part of their classwork. . . . The horns blare out and everyone stops to hear the band.

Latin Week brought out a whole flock of novel ideas. . . . Artists in Room 21 capitalized on the background they developed in art class to win the Christmas decoration contest.

Mr. C. M. Buterbaugh, Miss Elizabeth Allott, Mr. H. E. Stover, Mrs. Jane Ruffin, and Miss Blanche Quick of the commercial faculty discuss the proper typewriting technique for students.

COMMERCIAL

Stenos Learn The Ropes For Future Bosses

How well they remember entering 213 for the first time. At the beginning of their sophomore year every typewriter looked like some complicated mechanism that would be impossible to learn. Slowly, however, shorthand characters formed words, and fingers seemed at home on the keyboard.

Yes, commercial students had a laudable record for their four years. Shaky shorthand strokes grew to smooth, legible characters, which they could take down at over a hundred words per minute; and their fingers flew over the typewriters. Upon becoming stately seniors, the girls learned the use of various office machines.

Can't you recall the Commercial Club, with Peggy Moberg officiating? The gatherings were educational and entertaining and stressed the importance of the commercial field. However, this did not conclude their activities. Commercialists also presented a play for assembly during their senior year. Activities will always maintain a prominent place in their "memoirs."

Future stenographers practice writing with arm movement. . . . Sales girls find out what it's like behind the counter.

For accurate results, bookkeeping students check answers on the comptometer . . . Clerical practice girls prepare reports for the office.

MATHEMATICS

Still Search For XYZ With Sine And Logs

"But x just has to equal y minus 2 'cause 3 is equal to pi squared over three, and that's the only thing that's left; and besides, I'm confused!"

It doesn't take long for the mixed-up freshman to discover how to untangle such confusions in his algebra I classes. During his sophomore year, he expands his knowledge of algebra, learning the fundamentals of trigonometry and obtaining a knowledge of square root.

As an upperclassmen, he learns how to prove that "the bisector of an angle is equi-distant from both sides" and how to find the distance from the edge of a stream to the top of a tree on the other side.

In his pursuit of mathematical information, the general and industrial student learns how to apply practical knowledge to everyday calculations. He learns to solve his own problems and in doing so masters the technique of getting along in the world. From algebra to trigonometry the math student profits from the skills he learns and the habits he develops.

Mr. Ray V. Wild, Miss Mary Louise McBride, Miss Lyda Hamilton, and Miss Florence Breeton discuss lesson plans in mathematics for the coming week.

Factoring, formulas, and equations puzzle algebra I students. . . Freshmen jump on board plane for basic arithmetic.

Trig students work out difficult problems while Richard Jim looks on in awe. . . Students investigate tricks of geometry.

OFFICERS

Looking back just four years ago when they timidly entered the portals of Latrobe High School, members of the class of 1946 find their record stacked with individual accomplishments and achievements that stretch almost uninterruptedly from Freshmen Day to Commencement.

Starting off on the right foot as freshmen, they elected class officers and gained their first taste of democratic procedure. Selection of Thomas Okonak as leader of the class for two years, followed by George Greubel their junior year, and James Stumbaugh, senior year, constituted only the first foundation stone. Laying the next stone, students chose vice-presidents Helen Weber, Ned Khorey, John Dalton, and John Kozek. Joanne Leonhardt, Marlyn McGuire, Doris Stewart, and Mildred Hutchinson filled secretarial posts, while Albert Barnett, Donald Visconti, Norma Huffman, and Edith Lena kept watch on class finances. The final stone laid by students included the selection of Madalen Davis, Thomas Hendrickson, Bernard Smith, and Michael Kozar as Student Council representatives.

Centered in the dramatic spotlight many members displayed their talent. Venturing forth as freshmen, Norma Domasky, Patricia Walker, and Thomas Hendrickson gained roles in the all-class play, "Out of The Frying Pan." As student director, Norma Domasky helped another all-class play, "Plane Crazy," get off to a flying start in her sophomore year. To gain funds for the Prom, as juniors the class of '46 presented the mystery "Mumbo Jumbo" with Bernard Smith and John Dalton taking the leading roles. Others in the cast included La Verne Weber, Ralph Costello, and Donald Visconti.

Forensics played a major role for the class of 1946. As a freshman, Marlyn McGuire took the Extemporaneous Speaking Contest, while Helen Weber captured it the following year. Marlyn regained the title last year, with Fred Rogers, taking the final class prize and the school award in March. Peggy Moberg won first prize in the Rotary Oratorical Contest with Richard Bendl stepping into second place.

Everyone discovered physical training played an important part in their daily life. Excelling in both basketball and football were Ned Khorey and James Stumbaugh, while Fred Felbaum, Ray Kridle, and Charles Barlock made the going tough for opposing gridders. The first freshman victory in many years found room 211 gaining top honors in the girls' home room basketball tournament with Consetty Ciocco and Helen Chapla providing the winning drive.

Music not only brought entertainment to the school and community but provided an outlet for individual talent as well. Two of the graduating class, Elizabeth Gettemy and Doris Stewart, participated in the clarinet quartet as freshmen. This quartet linked a closer relationship between the work of the school and community.

From the day they were labeled "greenies" up until they clasped diplomas in their right hand, the class of 1946 sampled a taste of all sorts of responsibilities, not shrinking from any of them. Theirs is now a life of the future where they may share added responsibilities in the wider fields of their community and nation.

SENIOR PERSONALITIES

Outstanding Graduates Step Forward

The Maestro . . .

Sour notes? No, that doesn't hold true for Nancy Gregory who gained distinction through her four years of service to the music department in band, orchestra and as chorus accompanist.

The Craftsman . . .

Working amid the hum of lathes and the whine of power saws, James Comp emerged to take his place as the outstanding member of the class of "46" in the industrial department.

The Cook . . .

"There's an art to doing everything," and such may be applied to Jean Mikolay who captured domestic honors after having completed four years of cooking, sewing, and other closely related homemaking subjects.

The Student . . .

"The finer things of life" characterized by Doris Jean Stewart's appreciation for better education and living was recognized through her attainments in scholarship. She also presided over the National Honor Society.

To Receive Recognition In Special Fields

The Leader . . .

"Will someone make a motion that the meeting be adjourned?" Elected to preside over the Student Council his senior year, Fred Rogers directed the many activities sponsored by this organization.

The Actor . . .

Curtain going up! Bernard Smith stepped forth into the spotlight forgetting his true self to portray many different character roles called for in school productions throughout his four years of high school.

The Speaker . . .

"Madam Chairman" remains a familiar phrase with Marlyn McGuire, who stepped forth to capture the Extemporaneous Speaking Contest prizes her freshmen and junior years and give a senior oration.

The Secretary . . .

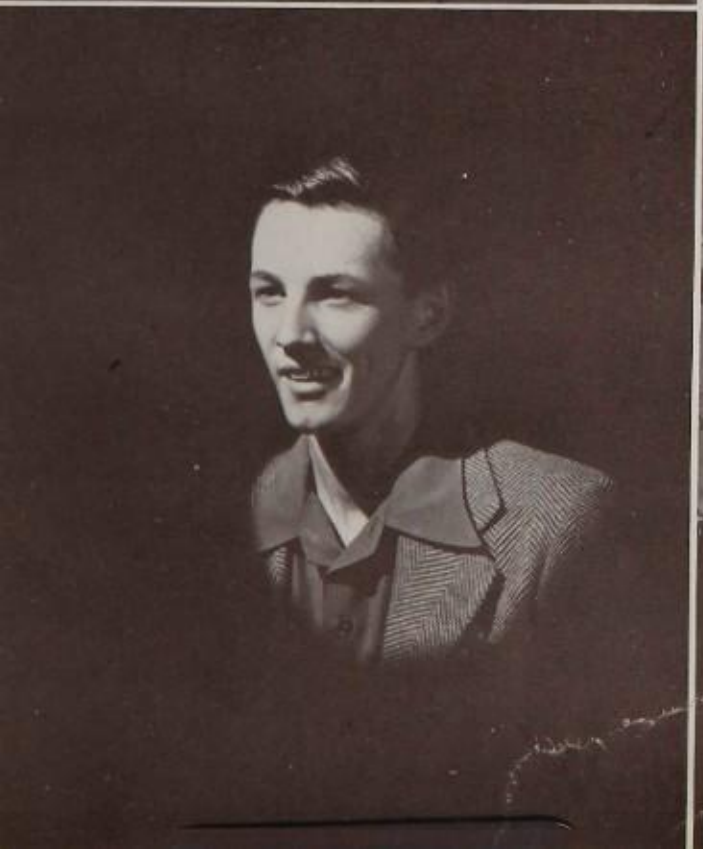

Asdfghjkl;! Yes, those letters are just like an old story to Margaret Moberg who has completed four years of the Commercial course with honors and served as president of the Commercial Club her senior year.

The Athlete . . .

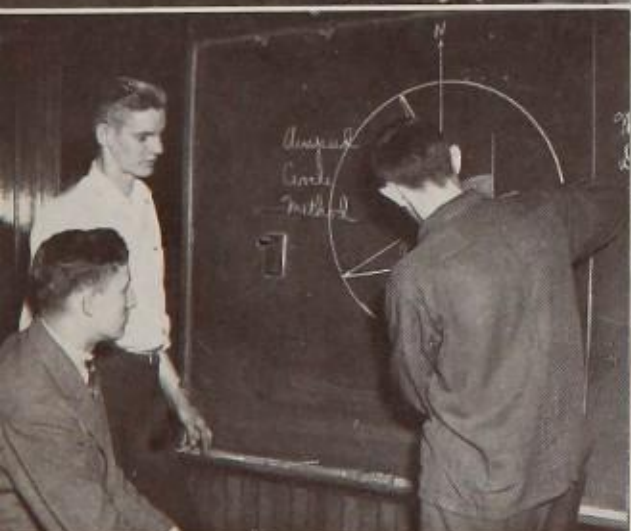

"T-e-a-m T-e-a-m" cheered football fans as they watched Fred Felbaum smash through the opposing lines as fullback on a hard hitting football squad. Fred proved you can play hard and be a gentleman.

The Editor . . .

"Any news today?" serves as the calling card for Virginia Visconti who acted as co-news editor her junior year, and as a senior did a bang up job directing publication of the High Post as editor-in-chief.

Candidly Speaking

Women's Club contest finalists Richard Bendl, Barbara Louis, Anita Larry, Grace Adolphson, Evangeline Seitanakis, and Ray Kirk, discuss the coming event . . . Winning first prize in the annual Homecoming day parade, this float best demonstrated "Good Sportsmanship." . . . Ach himmell! The German Band blares out for an assembly . . . Careful calculations eliminate crash landings.

Junior students adjust costumes before going on stage in the Lincoln Day play presented by American history classes . . . "Nifty, isn't it," exclaim seniors, Bill Mitchell and Mary Gallick, as they examine Spelling Bee prizes . . . Participants in oration preliminaries "dive" for a number . . . "Make your 'I do's' in Latin please," says high priest during mock wedding enacted by Latins at their annual banquet in celebration of National Latin Week . . . Broadcasters wait for "on the air" signal.

"Watch the birdie!" cry amateur photographers as spring brings another flock of shutter clickers . . . Projects always prove an attractive point of interest in any class . . . Council members apply the final coat of paint before furnishings are moved into the new Student Council rooms . . . Energetic senior boys of the Industrial course deck the Christmas tree for the front corridor.

UNDERCLASSES

Juniors Step Out

Stepping out of the shoes of underclassmen, the juniors started their third year by striving to keep up with the pace of the stately seniors. To secure funds for the annual Junior-Senior Prom, they produced a costume play entitled, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," with Robert Nair in the leading role. With Mrs. Mary Alice Graham as faculty adviser, president Bayard Wright, assisted by fellow officers, Leona Stemmler, vice-president, Dorothy Petrosky, secretary, Nancy George, treasurer, and Edward Palmer, Student Council representative, appointed committees which carried out the plans for a successful prom. The juniors also had charge of the decorations for the first dance of the year and the programs and announcements for the second dance.

Sophomores Shine

Not so green and with a surplus of energy, the sophomores plunged into their second year of activity. They got off to a fine start with Helen Jane Lawry and Shirley Eversole portraying roles in the all-class play, "Spring Green." A committee of sophomores provided the programs and invitations for the first Student Council dance, "The Harvest Hop," and the refreshments for the third. Under the supervision of Miss Dorothy Cox, adviser, president Charles Stahl, with the aid of Doris Jean Kridle, vice-president, Josephine Glamp, secretary, Rose Marie Mania, treasurer, and Brian Page, Student Council representative, officers of the class made the plans for a year of accomplishment for the young, carefree sophomores.

Freshmen Begin

In a general state of bewilderment and confusion, the verdant freshmen shed their childish manner and took on a new, but determined, attitude that started them off on the right foot for the next three years. Making fellow schoolmates sit up and take notice, Marcia Dovey, Virginia Bowman, and William Mailey had parts in the all-class play, "Spring Green." With Miss Evelyn Baxter as faculty adviser, and the class officers, Robert Callahan, president, William Blansett, vice-president, Virginia Bowman, secretary, Janet Nicely, treasurer, and Richard Gardner, Student Council representative, the freshmen decorated the gym and made programs and invitations for two school dances. All in all, the freshmen set a fine example for future "greenies" to follow.

Develop Creative Writing In Journalistic Field

So you want to be a journalist . . . you want to write headlines and battle passive verbs. . . .

Let me tell you what's in store for you. Come back to room 118—that's where you'll spend most of your time.

That cupboard over in the corner contains the dictionary. You'll really need it when trying to write a headline and can't think of a word to fill in the count. Back there is the pencil sharpener. You'll need that, too. You can wear down a lot of pencils trying to write a story when there's not an inspiration. But don't let that worry you!

Those papers hanging in the back of the room are exchange papers. Perhaps you never knew that the "High Post" is sent to other schools in return for their newspapers. It's interesting to study the layouts and styles used by staffs in other parts of the country.

And those awards that almost hide the wall! The staff is proud of them because they represent hard work and the staff's ability. Your school paper and year book rightly deserved them all.

You might get a chance to write stories for the Bulletin while you're here. Don't get excited! All you have to do is give an account of what happened in an assembly or describe the plot of a class play that was presented. There's nothing to it. Besides, it's exciting to see your own story in the home town newspaper.

Of course, your stories for the High Post won't be hard. You'll just have to talk to a teacher or two and secure your information. It's easier than it sounds because most teachers are willing to help you, and news is plentiful in a school of this size.

But remember—putting out a school paper isn't as easy as ABC—it takes time. Let me warn you that many a night you'll be sitting in room 118 after 6:00 o'clock, pounding typewriter keys as fast as you can make them go or struggling over headlines.

Don't get the wrong impression, it's really a lot of fun and it gives you a feeling of satisfaction, in that you have served your fellow students. Still want to try it?

All right, go to it, good luck!

EVERYONE WORKS TO GET THE PRESSES ROLLING

News material is discussed by High Post workers. . . . Folding High Posts gives aspiring Journalists first smell of printer's ink. . . . Staff members search for story material as deadline approaches.

Friday afternoon means "High Post," and staff members must hustle to get the papers counted and distributed. . . . Quill and Scroll members confer on initiation plans. . . . Typists have their inning with High Post copy.

Oration winners, Bernard Smith, Edith Lena, and Richard Bendl, examine the contents of Peggy Moberg's prize-winning oration.

Anita Larry, Peggy Good, Barbara Hurley, Pat Walker, Alberta Chenet, and Rosemary Petrosky discuss plans for the annual Ruth Robb Debate.

FORENSICS

Websters Give New Ideas On Age-Old Problems

Crowded into February, March, and April, are those contests which spotlight the speaking abilities of students in Latrobe High School. After four years of practice and training, seniors display their individual styles while striving to obtain prizes for original orations. Next come weeks of research and investigation which terminate in extemporaneous speeches. The third bit of competition arrives and the business of Shakespearian readings, declamations, and poetry presents itself. Finally, the last tourney, the debate, is past and sighs of relief and pride are reflected as the forensic year passes in review.

Orations, plague of seniors, seem to be little bother now as they are over for another year. Engrossing all the skills that high school English teach, orations reveal the scope of student accomplishment. Margaret Moberg's speech, "The Russian Peril," was chosen first in a competition which originated with twenty-four participants. "The Christian Ideal," delivered by Richard Bendl, was awarded second place honors. A laudation of Wilkie, "Disciple of the Future," third place winner, was given by Edith Lena, while Bernard Smith's address, "America, What Do You Fear," received honorable mention.

The extemporaneous speaking contest closely followed the oratorical finals. The general topic for this year's discussion was, "A World Organization for Peace." Chosen as the better speaker of the two senior finalists and the best speaker of the contest was Fred Rogers who spoke on the subject, "The U.N.O. is the Answer to a World Organization for Peace." Alberta Chenet achieved junior honors for her speech of, "A World Organization for Peace is an Urgent Necessity." For, "What Influence As A World Power Can The United States Exert in Establishing A World Organization for Peace," sophomore Shirley Eversole, achieved recognition, while freshman Ned Nakles, won the honors for his classmates by reviewing "The Development of the U. N. O."

During the final half of the forensic season, the Woman's Club Contest and Ruth Robb debate were presented. The winners of the Woman's Club Contest were chosen from three divisions; poetry reading by Barbara Louis, declamations by Anita Larry, and Shakespeare reading by Evangeline Seitanakis. In the Ruth Robb debate, six members of the debating class discussed the national topic, "Resolved: That every able-bodied male citizen should have one year of full time military training before attaining the age of twenty-four." The negative team composed of Anita Larry, Margaret Good, and Rosemary Petrosky won this contest.

Senior and frosh extemp winners, Fred Rogers and Ned Nakles, make way for the other two champs, Shirley Eversole and Alberta Chenet.

• Rotary Oratorical • Kiwanis Extemporaneous • Women's Club • Ruth Robb Debate

Senior oratorical finalists, Smith, Rogers, Khorey, Bendi, Lena, Moberg, Kozek, and Stewart breath last free air before the curtain rises.

DEBATING CLASS
FIRST ROW: Murray, Hurley, Wright, Walker, Good.
SECOND ROW: Pickett, Tovo, Larry, Chenet, Petrosky.

Ex temp finalists, Rogers, Walker, Chenet, Wright, Eversole, Cease, Nakles, and Bowman await the judges' decision in the annual contest.

Actors Work To Produce Exact Emotions And Fine Amusement

Yes, "thanks for the memories" of tryout practices, dress rehearsals, and anxious moments before curtain time.

Remember the all-class play, "Spring Green" with Tom Okonak, in his horn-rimmed glasses, training earth worms? And no one will ever forget how handsome "Bernie" Smith looked in that major's uniform and Bayard Wright as the head of the local wolf pack. One will always recall Marcia Dovey with all the males in the cast on her leash, Shirley Eversole's hot temper, Helen Jane Lawry's date troubles, and Melinda Massena's scrap collections.

The junior class play, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," will be remembered as being different from all other junior plays. In the center of medieval scenery and costumes, Mike Hellenic as Merlin cast weird spells in conjunction with the wicked schemes of Peggy Good, who played Morgan LeFay. Part of the memories of this play will be Jane Boore, as Guinevere, hen-pecking King Arthur, enacted by Robert Lazarchik. Not to be forgotten is Bob Nair, as the "Connecticut Yankee" himself, as he turns a sixteenth century court into a twentieth century business office.

Remember the seniors cast, "Arsenic and Old Lace," with Helen Weber and Joan Tepper as the crazy old ladies. And never to be forgotten is Tom Okonak, as the Brewster, who thought he was Teddy Roosevelt, and who punctuated the play with his frequent trips to Panama and Africa. The only sane Brewster, Mortimer, was portrayed by Bernie Smith who continuously tried to keep O'Hara, Bill Bridge, from discovering the bodies in the cellar. Richard Bendl as Jonathan Brewster, double of Boris Karloff, and John as Doctor Herman Einstein, plastic surgeon, added mystery and horror to the plot.

BAND

FIRST ROW: Okonak, Casterwiler, Gearing, Gettemy, Galimberti, Gregory, Bridge, Stewart, Coleman.

Football season and autumn traditionally provide an opportunity for the band to strut its stuff. Saturday afternoons almost everyone knew the band was on the march as the Orange and Black clad figures swept by on their way to the Athletic Field. But the band alone did not provide all the accomplishments of Latrobe High School's musicians during a busy year. Eight choristers, five girls and three boys, sang in the District Chorus at McKeesport, and Nancy Gregory accompanied this group of 150 singers in their final concert. Two of the singers were selected to sing in the All-State Chorus at Reading. Orchestra members also gained their share of recognition. Three girls played in the All-State Orchestra in Harrisburg. The high spots of the year, however, were the instrumental and choral concerts presented on successive Friday evenings early in the spring with the S.R.O. sign greeting late comers.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Encourages Participation
In All-School Life

Council officers plan for the Student Council Convention. Fred Rogers, president, discusses the program outline with Norma Domasky, secretary, Rebecca Lowe, vice-president, and Rosemary Petrosky, treasurer.

Spilling green paint on Mr. Beatty's hat, coming in short at the basketball games, or quaking at the knees while leading assembly devotions . . . all these flash across Student Council members' minds as they recall the year's activities.

At the beginning of the year council members elected officers to guide them during the term. They chose Fred Rogers, senior, to preside over their meetings, while Rebecca Lowe, senior, was elected to assist him as vice president. They elected Norma Domasky, senior, and Rosemary Petrosky, junior, to fill the posts of secretary and treasurer.

During the year, Council members finally achieved their long-time aim; they prepared and decorated a special club-room in the school as a center for their numerous activities. During football and basketball seasons the Council supervised Homecoming Day and sold refreshments in order to finance their projects. Fred Rogers crowned the Royal Family at the "Cherry Smash," while Council members presided at the two other major dances, "The Harvest Hop" and "The Blizzard."

For the first time in four years Student Council sponsored the annual spelling bee in the regular assembly, presenting a fountain pen to the winner, Norma Lantzy. The Council also sponsored nine special assemblies featuring musical talent, lectures, and other unique programs.

In April Council acted as host to more than 80 schools of Western Pennsylvania at a Student Council Conference. The students met to discuss problems and methods of procedure in student government.

This year Student Council and Latrobe One Hundred Friends of Art added four new paintings to the student chosen collection of forty-two pictures already hanging in the corridors. Included in the purchase were "White Cloud" by George W. Sotter and "Bobby and Queenie" by Orval Kepp. "The Ramp" by Frank A. Trapp and "Whistle Stop" by John D. Clarkson were purchased by the One Hundred Friends of Art.

ORGANIZATIONS

Provide Added Pastimes
 For Energetic Pupils

Recalling club activities, the student realizes that what seemed like fun at the time was really a way of learning the invaluable lessons of cooperation and getting along with other people.

The Junior Classical League gave Latin pupils an opportunity to learn the value of Latin in the modern world. French and Spanish students gained knowledge of the countries whose languages they were studying, besides holding informal conversations in these modern tongues. Aspiring photographers "learned by doing" during Camera Club meetings. Amateurs turned professional as they learned the proper methods for taking and developing pictures.

Commercial students enlarged their business horizons during club meetings where they learned the essentials of a business career. Informal meetings taught these lessons so well that members will remember them long after graduation. Future scientists put theories into practice during Science Club meetings. This organization developed an interest in science which will serve as a basis for advanced work in this field.

Service to the school served as the primary objective of other organizations. Student Patrol members provided for student safety along with gaining a knowledge of traffic rules. Members of Student Service learned to give courteous aid and attention to student problems, and to administer order during school hours. The school library became a valuable source of reference, and a pleasant place to study, mainly through the efforts of the librarians. These girls learned library technique while being of definite service to students.

The girls who manned the Health Room gained valuable training in nursing. Aiding the sick and injured provided a sound background for future work.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY Awards Top Distinction To Upperclassmen

Members of the National Honor Society remember with pride their initiation into the group for they know that selection for this honorary organization is a distinction based upon demonstrated excellence in scholarship, leadership, service and character.

President Doris Stewart, garbed in red cap and gown, presided at the initiation attended by the student body. William Bridge served as torch bearer, Betty Gettemy as color bearer, while Joan Gibson called the roll. Virginia Visconti, dressed in purple, signified leadership, and Nancy Gregory, garbed in white, represented character. Dressed in a gold gown, David Adams signified scholarship, while Fred Rogers, in white, characterized service. James Stumbaugh, Margaret Moberg, Jean Mikolay, Marlyn McGuire, and John Kozek, dressed in blue, acted as marshalls. Jack Dalton served as herald.

Members of the society elected officers to serve them during the year. They chose Doris Stewart as president; Betty Gettemy, vice president; Joan Gibson, secretary; Nancy Gregory, treasurer; William Bridge, Student Council representative, and David Adams, High Post reporter.

... The Broadcasters

"This is Station BCC," chants a newscaster as another bi-weekly broadcast gets under way.

The broadcasts first had their start seven years ago with an approximate five-minute newscast in the home room period Monday and Thursday. Since then the classes, under the direction of Miss Mary Louise McBride, with their motto, "To inform and not to entertain," strive to supply students and faculty members with the "latest school news flashes up to the moment." Besides providing information, the broadcasters also do a great deal towards advertising dances, dramatic productions, and ticket campaigns.

However, broadcasters do not stop with the five-minute summaries. Each Christmas season the class produces a special twenty-minute program relating to the holiday. Every year the broadcasting class also presents a one-act play in assembly as an extra project.

Members of the broadcasting class tune in on a professional program. Seated: Carroll, Larry, Eversole, Chenet, Mania. Standing: Louis, Murray, Eisamen, Parizek, Ciocco.

AND A GOOD TIME WAS HAD BY ALL

LEFT: It certainly takes a touchdown to cause that much joy and excitement. . . . "Relax and study" is the motto of these juniors as they learn their lines for their play, "A Connecticut Yankee." . . . Participants in extemp preliminaries await the announcement of class subjects. . . . When a history book comes to life, then anything can happen. Just ask the Librarians. . . . Making a bed becomes less of a chore when you know how it should be done. . . . CENTER: "Hold still a minute," home-

RIGHT: Juniors listen to professional interpretations of the "Merchant of Venice." . . . "Careful, one drop too many and you'll have to do it over again! . . . THE MENTORS

Gridiron coaches, M. E. Rizzo, R. V. Wild and C. S. Westfall interrupt an afternoon practice schedule to confer with Mr. W. E. Yates, faculty manager.

THE MANAGERS

Managers Tom Hunter, Harry Johnstin, Al Barnett, Jim Murphy and Doby Lynch handled equipment during the season.

Returning to take over coaching reins after serving in the armed forces for three years, Coach Ray V. Wild was greeted by 70 boys when he called for football candidates late in August. With six veterans to build around, Coach Wild groomed his ranks and developed a combination of six senior and five junior boys which captured the Westmoreland County Class "AA" title for the first time since 1934.

With Fred Felbaum as captain, the Cats inaugurated their campaign with a 12-0 win over Penn High. Mazero and Felbaum tallied for the locals. A week later the Wildcats hung up their second victory shellacking Hurst, 18-0. Bob Mazero sparked the locals by scoring twice while Felbaum tallied in the final quarter.

Donora's Dragons, 1944 and '45 WPIAL champs, proved too much for the Wildmen as they trounced the locals, 33-0. A 70 yard dash by Mazero and a touchdown pass to Markovich gave Latrobe a 13-0 victory over the undefeated Jeannette Jayhawks at McKee Stadium a week later.

After holding Altoona scoreless for three quarters, the Cats had to be content with a 6-6 tie the following Saturday. Mazero's pass to Palombo put the locals ahead, 6-0, but the Lions scored in the final minutes. Norwin proved the fourth victim as they fell, 12-0, on scores by Mazero and Felbaum.

Trailing for three fourths of the encounter, Latrobe's Wildcats put on a spirited drive, climaxed by Mazero's 12-yard end run, to tie Greensburg, 6-6, at Offut Field. Led by Stumbaugh and Felbaum, the Cats shaded the Holy City eleven from Wilkesburg, 12-7.

Climaxing the most successful season in 10 years, the Wildmen closed with a sparkling 6-0 win over Derry Twp. on Armistice Day. Jim Stumbaugh raced 25 yards on a pass completion for the score in the final frame.

Season's Highlights

Bob Mazero plunged over the goal from the three yard line on a quarterback sneak to score Latrobe's first touchdown of the year.

Latrobe held Donora's WPIAL champs from scoring when the Dragons had a first down with only two yards to go for a touchdown.

"Zeke" took a Jeannette punt on his own 36 yard line and outdistanced the entire Jayhawk team as he raced 65 yards for a score.

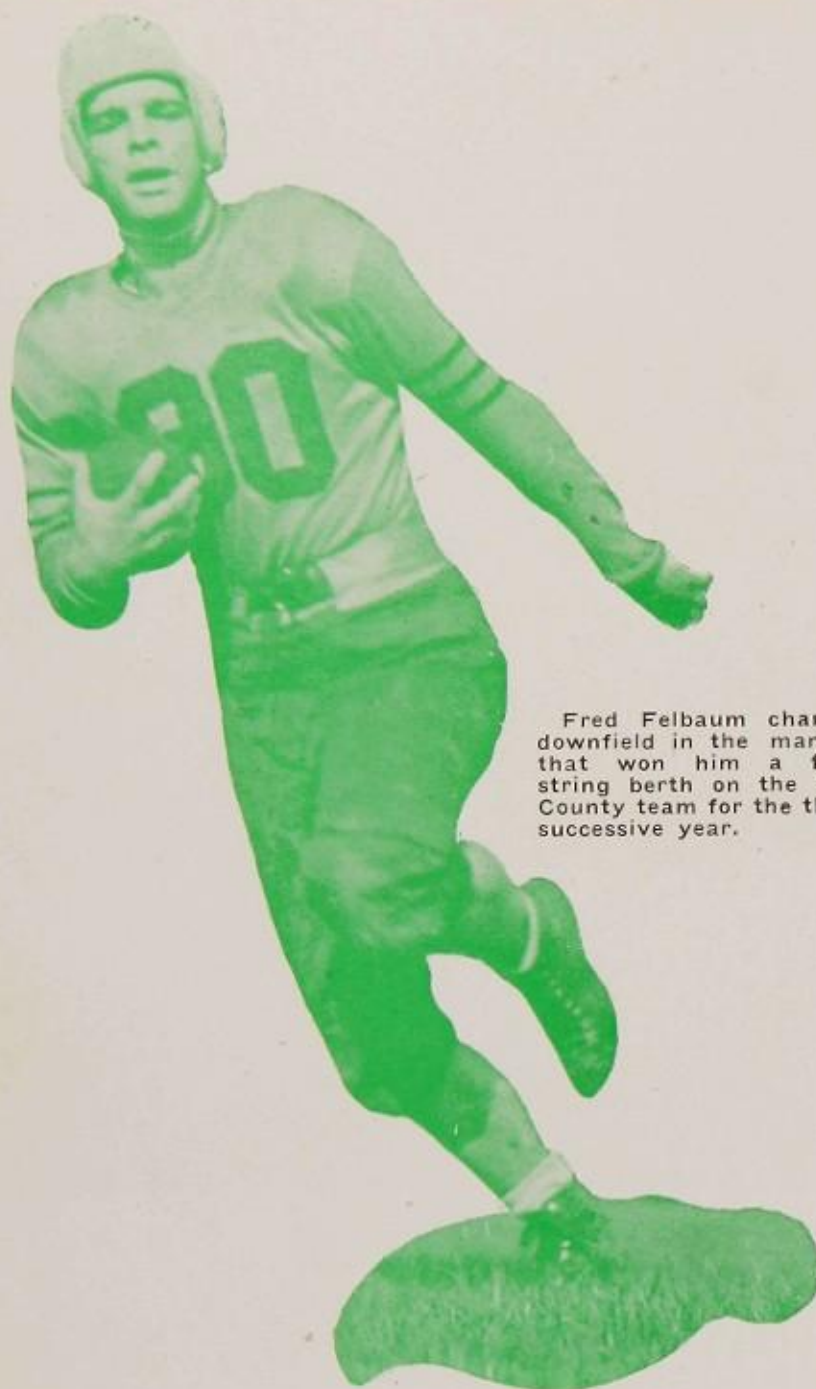

The Cats had a third touchdown against Jeannette nullified because they had an offside penalty called on them on the play that netted the score.

Al Palombo took a pass on the goal line and fell into the end zone to score a touchdown against Altoona before four minutes had elapsed.

"Bazzie" Felbaum chased Paul Messich of Greensburg 50 yards before making a shoe string tackle to stop the Lion ace from making a 97 yard touchdown run.

Latrobe let Wilkinsburg gain a 7-6 lead, but took the ensuing kick-off and marched 80 yards in eight plays to score and win the game, 12-7.

Jim Stumbaugh snagged a 15 yard pass and then raced 35 yards to score the only touchdown in the Derry Twp. game as Latrobe won, 6-0.

Fred Felbaum charges downfield in the manner that won him a first string berth on the All-County team for the third successive year.

SECOND ROW: Reed, Caruso, McDowell, Stewart, Smith, Fenton, Cogan.

Faced with a tough 18 game schedule, Coach Wild, assuming the basketball reins again, called for floor candidates late in November and from a group of 60 hopefuls, chose 11 boys for his varsity roster. These included eight juniors and three seniors.

With four veterans in the starting lineup, the Wildcats knocked off Mt. Pleasant in an overtime struggle, 33-30, and followed with wins over Scottdale, 27-25, and Ligonier, 25-21. In a return engagement at Ligonier the Cats suffered their first reverse, 31-19.

Latrobe again met defeat when a last quarter let down gave Mt. Pleasant's Bobcats a 44-35 victory. However the Cats found victory in their Section VIII opener as they nosed out Jeannette, 28-26. Greensburg then proved too tough a barrier and downed Latrobe, 45-32. Traveling to Johnstown for a non-league fray, the Wildcats, by virtue of a last second field goal, shaded the Trojans, 15-13.

Playing host to Connellsville, Latrobe dropped its second loop contest, 33-29. However, in the next game the Cats upset the dope bucket and trounced Uniontown, 30-22. The following three league encounters erased the locals from the running as they bowed to Norwin, 34-24, Jeannette, 36-26, and Greensburg, 40-16.

Sporting an entirely revamped lineup, the proteges of Coach Wild again shaved Johnstown in a non-league encounter, 31-30. Traveling to Connellsville, the Wildcats, for the first time in six years, defeated the Cokers on their home court, 28-26. Uniontown's Raiders gained revenge for their earlier defeat as they swamped Latrobe, 31-17, in the following loop fray.

Unable to hit the hoop in an overtime period spelled defeat as Latrobe lost its final league tilt to Norwin, 35-34. Entering the Westmoreland County tournament, the Wildcats drew Greensburg for their first opponent and for the third time dragged to the Raiders, 39-20.

In a post-season affair on April 4, the Cats closed all basketball activities as they visited Sleepy Hollow Tavern for the annual banquet. Varsity, junior varsity, and freshmen cage squads attended.

MINOR SPORTS

Unsung Heroes
Cop Honors

About the time spring made its appearance, coaches issued calls for candidates in minor sports, and students responded to comprise some of the largest squads in many years.

Coach C. E. Westfall, assisted by R. V. Wild, greeted over 50 track candidates, including lettermen. The junior class copped the interclass meet by edging the favored seniors. The squad pitted its skill against such teams as Derry Township, Greensburg, Jeannette, and Connellsville. Aside from dual and triangular meets, Latrobe's cinder team entered in the county and WPIAL meets, and those who qualified entered the state meets.

Forming one of the largest squads in many years, 13 candidates answered Mr. W. E. Yates' call for golfers. Attempting to repeat their undefeated season and section championship, the squad, paced by Arnold Palmer, tangled with Jeannette, Duquesne, and Greensburg.

Gymnasts earned a repeated fourth place in the WPIAL meet. Ray Kirk and Clair Spahn garnered second and third place honors respectively in the Indian clubs, while Albert Bernas copped third place in the side horse.

Under the supervision of Mr. G. D. Rise, the tennis squad had a banner season featuring an interclass and the county meet on the local courts. The racquet swingers engaged New Kensington, Jeannette, and McKeesport in sectional warfare aside from other dual meets.

Cheerleaders Ray Richwine and Bayard Wright, assisted by six sophomore boys, led the cheering at games this year.

... Tennis Champions

In Latrobe High School's mythical Hall of Fame appear the names of Ned Khoroy and George Greubel after their achievement in the spring of '45. Together they gained statewide fame as they annexed the state doubles championship in tennis last year.

In the WPIAL meet, Ned and George gained top honors, bringing Latrobe High School recognition as district tennis champions. In the state meet held on the Penn State courts, they overpowered Williamsport and Lancaster to advance to the finals. They decisioned South Hills by counts of 6-4 and 7-5 in the clinching series to achieve the doubles crown.

George Greubel and Ned Khoroy, state tennis champions, shake hands before this year's meet.

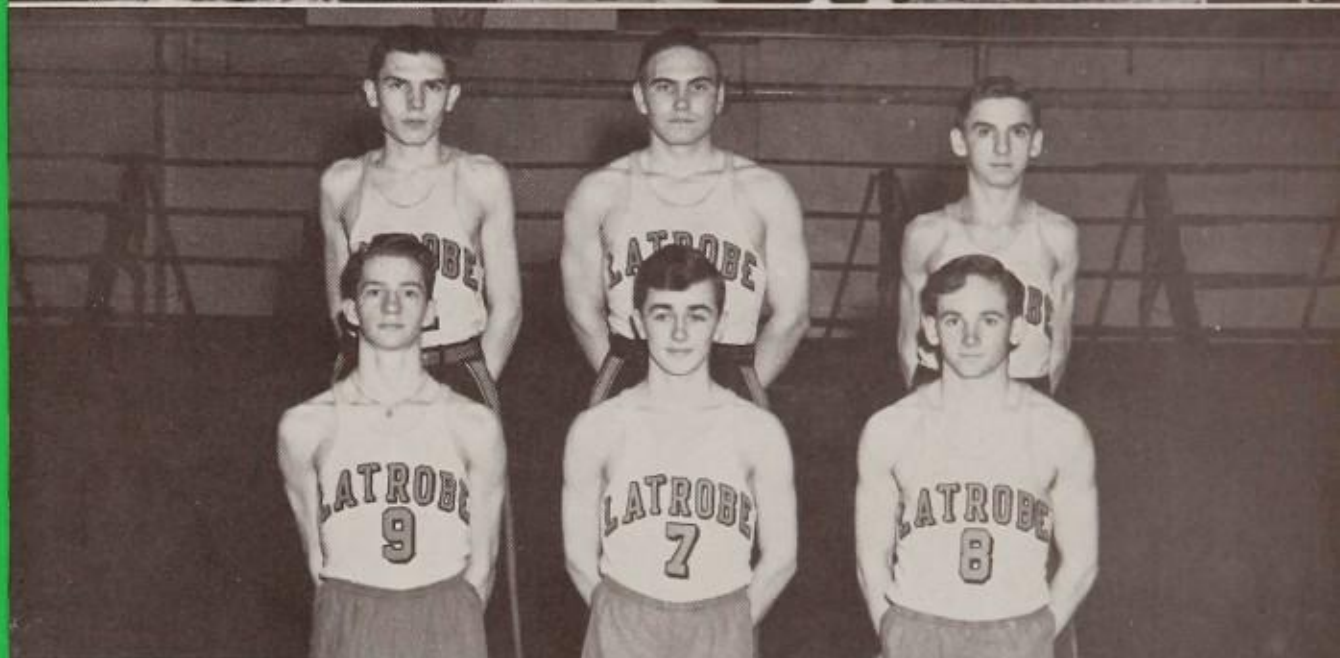

THE GOLF SQUAD

Members of the link squad captured their section golf title for the third consecutive year. Kneeling: Moyer, Burick, Musick, Shanefelt, Palmer, Zerbo. Standing: Levin, Madey, Reed, Bowman, DeSance, Wright, Marks, Pervarnik, Balko.

Intra-Mural Sports

Intra-mural sports, stressing teamwork and good sportsmanship, added another chapter to Latrobe High School's attractive athletic program by giving more than half the student body a chance to participate in after school games, including basketball, volleyball, and ping-pong.

Boys from room 104 captured the victor's laurels in the home room basketball tournament. Sparked by Ned Khorey, the seniors advanced to the finals where they topped the 206 freshmen 32-16. Other boys on the team included Bob Lawson, Francis McHal, Maurice Macey, and Ray Kridle.

Senior girls brought the championship banner to room 102 in their section of the tourney. Sophomore room 213 fell before the senior's deadly accuracy in the final game by a 12-3 count. Consetty Ciocco, Helen Chapla, Helen Cline, Jean Casterwiler, Myrtle Carbonara, Ruth Correll, and Mary Louise Caylor comprised the winning team.

Senior Jim Fenton again captured the boys' ping-pong crown, facing 16 opponents in a tournament under the supervision of Mr. C. M. Buterbaugh, commercial instructor. Jim decisioned Harry Murray in the finals to repeat his success of last year. In the girls' table tennis tournament Nancy Lynch also retained her championship laurels. She bettered Edith Matko in three exciting matches to cop the victors honors.

Setting a fast pace throughout, sophomore gym class III garnered the school volleyball championship as they overpowered period VI in the play-offs. Eight teams entered the tourney to struggle for the winner's title.

By virtue of a 35-11 win over Thursday IV, Friday IV walked off with the boys' class basketball crown, making it two years in a row that seniors triumphed in the affair. Ed Showalter, Richard Roble, Ray Richwine, George Wigfield, Charles Moff, and George Coleman were members of the winning team.

Senior girls' health Friday VIII vanquished freshmen gym IV to gain to honors in the class basketball tournament. Consetty Ciocco, Ruth Correll, Rita Kutzer, Dorothy Jones, Betty Angus, Madeline Zuzack, and Mary Taiani comprised the victorious team.

Appreciation

With deep gratitude and appreciation, the members of the 1946 Latrobean staff wish to express their thanks to all those who helped in any way to make this yearbook possible.

We wish to give recognition to Messrs. Darwin and Henry DeGlau whose untiring efforts and interest made the photographic work of this book complete, and also to Mr. Donald Young of the Pontiac Engraving Company whose professional aid was so valuable in the laying out of the annual.

We are likewise indebted to Mr. C. B. Carroll, of the Latrobe Airport, who furnished the airplane and George Allen, flight instructor, who flew the cameramen for the aerial shot of the school.

For their candid shots, we wish to thank Austin Wright and Richard Coleman.

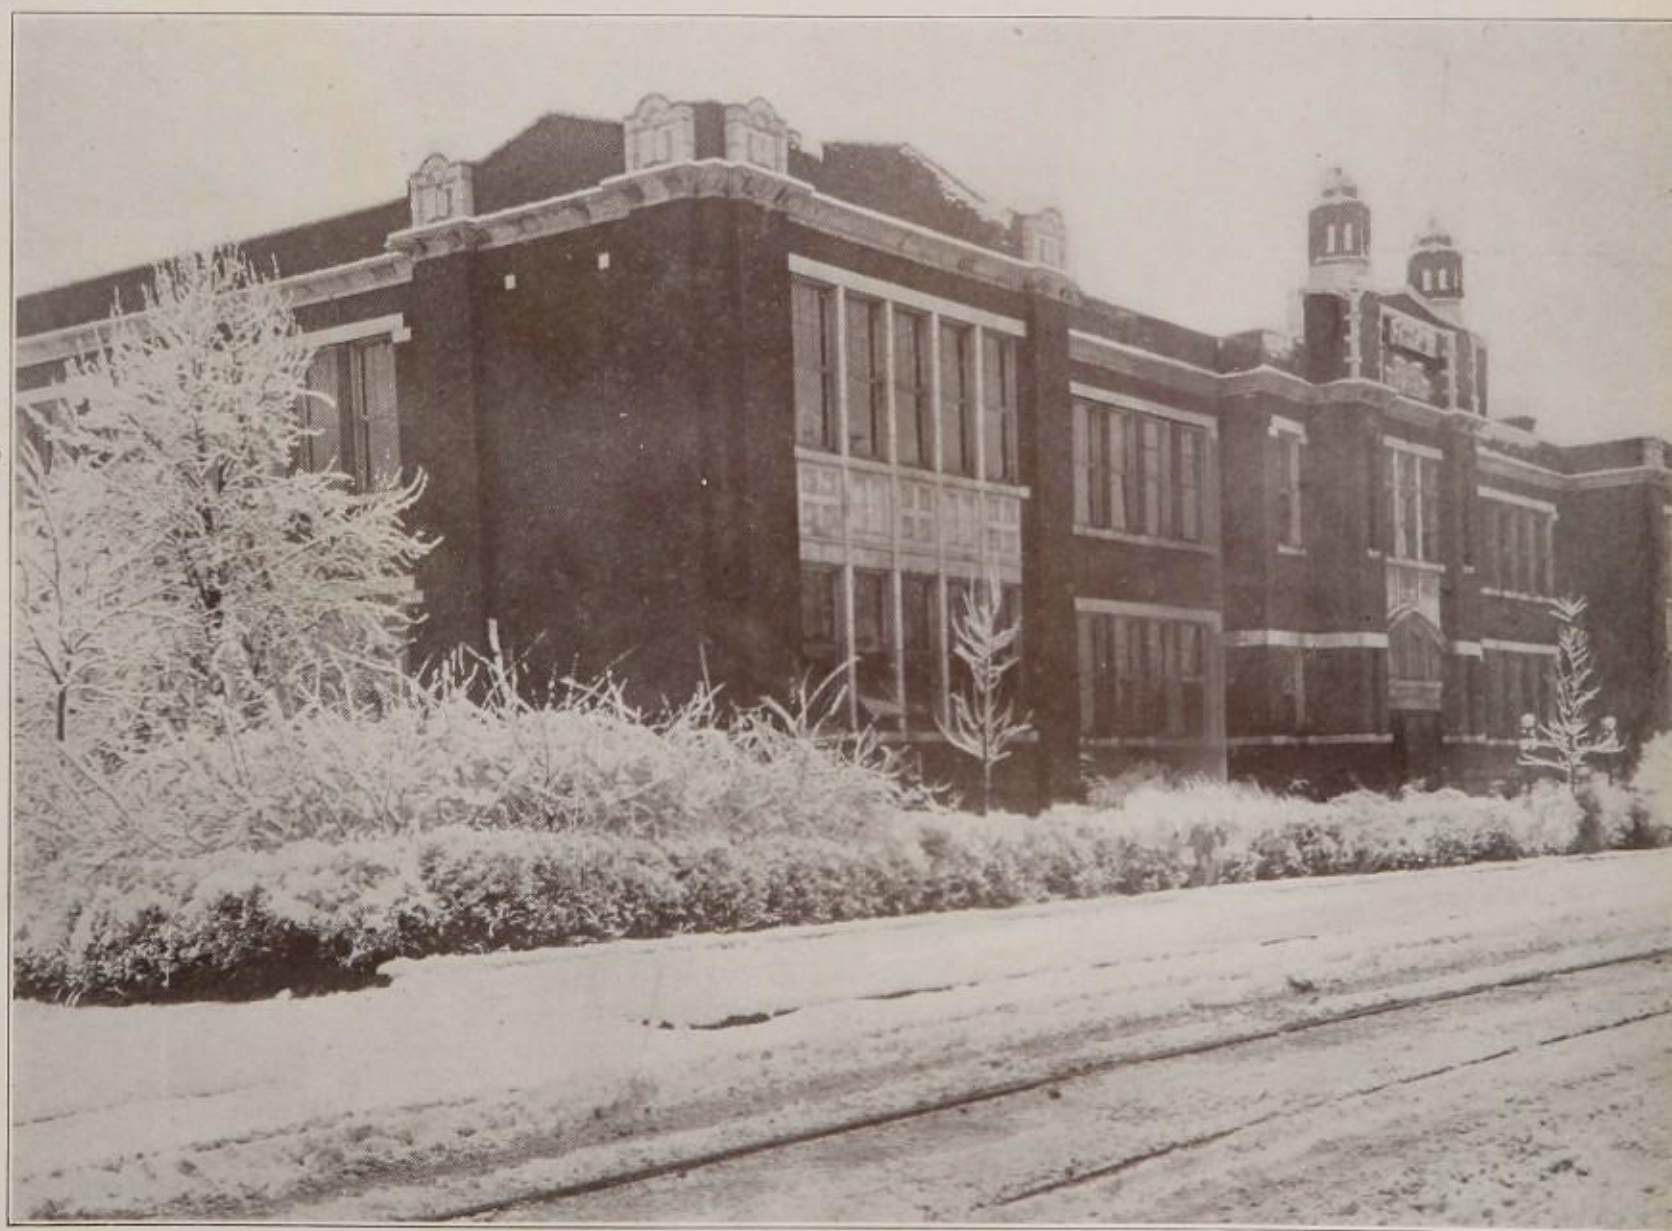

To the faculty and student body of our four year "home," we extend our most sincere appreciation for their cooperation in the taking of our group and informal pictures.

The editor wants finally to congratulate each member of the staff for his fine cooperation in all the work connected with this our 1946 Latrobean.

FINE TOOL STEELS

Made in Your Home Town and Serving All America

TOOL STEELS give shape to the things we use. They are the alloys of fine metal that mold and form, cut and pattern almost every object made by man. Tool Steels build machines, and machines use Tool Steels . . . the harder, tougher, stronger and more wear-resistant dies, cutting tools, punches, files, hammers, saws, items without number which have built and are building the material part of our country's great civilization.

Here in Latrobe you have a pioneer and leader in the production of fine Tool Steels—a company whose products are known and used throughout industry for top quality, top performance in doing a better job.

Quality comes first at Vanadium-Alloys Steel Company. It is the watchword in our Metallurgical Laboratories. It is the guide of the craftsmen who produce and fabricate our steels.

We hope you share our pride in having built, in our good town, an industry of national reputation for its products and national recognition of the harmony of effort existing, for so long a time, between the men and management of the Company.

AMERICAN TRADITION

• Quality, Integrity and Dependability have established themselves as a definite tradition with Pontiac. We have been constantly on the alert for new and improved procedures in yearbook designing and service. Our modern precision equipment is concrete evidence of adherence to this policy. Our experienced craftsmen and servicemen are carefully supervised by experts in the field of distinctive school publications. We are proud to have played a part in the publishing of this book in the capacity of official photo engravers. Our entire personnel congratulate the staff for their splendid work and cooperation.
